WUSD teachers get warning of possible layoffs

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

In response to an expected reduction in the State of California's education budget for next year, West Sacramento's Washington Unified School District Board of Education recently took action to deal with a potential shortfall of between $1.5 and $2.5 million dollars in the district's 2003/2004 budget.

As a first step to accommodate the problem, the Board of Education authorized the mailing of layoff notices later this week for 65 positions, which represents over 15 percent of WUSD's credentialed teaching staff. This was done in compliance with state law which requires school districts to notify a teacher by March 15th if there is a possibility that he or she may be let go in the following fiscal year. Seniority also plays a role in the process, with tenured teachers having "bumping rights" which have to be taken into consideration.

The district is also considering reductions in administrative positions, custodians, its maintenance and operations staff, and instructional assistants. In addition, the district is reviewing its energy costs, transportation system, and the redirection of other programs that could possibly be funded by sources other than the general fund.

"Although our fixed expenses continue to grow," explained WUSD Superintendent Stu Greenfeld, "the State of California, which is responsible for over 80 percent of our funding, is now telling us that the monies we receive from them could be as much as $200 to $250 less per student next year. If that worse case scenario comes to pass, that will require our district and hundreds more throughout the State of California to painfully tighten our belts."

"Absolutely nothing in the school district will be overlooked as a possible area of cost reduction," said WUSD Board President Pat Flint.

Greenfeld went on to explain that three quarters of the school districts in the greater Sacramento area find themselves in a similar predicament.

"They are all sending out notices, too," said Greenfeld, "and the problem is statewide as well. For example, in San Diego, their largest district is trying to make up for a possible $150 million dollar loss of funds and has sent out over 350 layoff notices. As for our district, the timing could not have been worse. We have been seeing some wonderful increases in student achievement in a number of our schools and this pulls the rug right out from under our efforts to provide incentives to attract and retain skilled, enthusiastic teachers."

To further complicate the problem, WUSD is currently at impasse with its teachers' union (Washington Teachers Association) over the district's recent decision not to offer its teachers a 3.87 percent cost of living adjustment to their salaries. The heated labor dispute is scheduled for more negotiations later this week and the last thing WUSD educators wanted to hear was that there will soon be layoff notices in the mail to some of the district's best young teachers.

"I'm one of the teachers on the bubble," said Mark Leffler, a social science teacher who has been at River City High School for three years, "and I honestly believe that if we lose just one or two of our social science teachers, it will decimate our department."

"These layoff notices are not only ill-conceived," said RCHS art teacher Joe Schumacher, "but they have the potential to create chaos around here and leave us scrambling next year to find well-qualified replacements. If the administration and the school board are really serious about improving test scores in this district, then whatever cuts are necessary cannot come at the expense of the teachers."

"Our hope is that the reduction in state funding will not be as drastic as some experts are predicting," said Greenfeld, "but until the state's finances and economy improves -- which may be two or three years down the road -- this problem is going to continue to be with us. The whole subject of how schools are funded needs to be completely re-examined so we can get away from this boom and bust cycle which makes long range decision making so difficult for school districts. And believe me, the very last thing I and the school board want to do is lose some of our best certificated and classified employees and we're going to do everything we can to avoid that."

Not the Epcot Center

The multi-faceted, dome-like structure rising towards I-80 in West Sacramento's northwest bears a slight resemblance to Disney's Epcot Center in Florida, believes at least one local resident. But it's merely a new structure at the expanded Bryte Bend Water Treatment Plant operated by the City of West Sacramento.

"That is a clear well reservoir," said Jerry Lo, director of the city's public works department. "We have two. The old one is still underground."

Like the old one, the new reservoir stores treated water before it is released to city water customers.

Council holds 'retreat' at city hall

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The West Sacramento City Council, its top staff and a facilitator all met over the weekend in an unusual "retreat" meeting to discuss management style and other "city matters, procedures, policies and functions."

The meetings took place at the civic center both days beginning at 9 a.m.

"This was an opportunity for the new city council and the new city manager to engage in some 'visioning' work," said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon yesterday. "We brought in a facilitator to help us do that. It's the kind of long-range work that's important to do when you are dealing with things issue-by-issue."

Cabaldon said the retreat provided an opportunity to take stock of progress.

"We really are on the upswing in this city, and in the middle of a renaissance you want to take a step back and make sure your longterm direction is intact."

He characterized the current council as "coherent and cohesive. . . where there is a common vision and common set of valued for the city, although that doesn't mean we always agree on everything."

The city gave legally required notice of the retreat, as it is required by state law to do for all meetings of the council. Details of the meetings were received too late for publication in last week's News-Ledger.

'Friends' step up:

$50k for new library

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The local "Friends of the Library" support group has pledged $50,000 towards construction of the new library facility envisioned for West Sacramento by city and county officials.

The new, 25,000 square foot building is planned to replace the current 8,500 square foot branch located nearby on West Capitol Ave. near Merkley Ave.

. Yolo County is applying for state help to construct the new branch.

"Mary Stephens (the county librarian) talked to us about the funding, and said it would be beneficial to have a commitment from the 'Friends' to be included with the county's application," said Phyllis Runyan of the East Yolo Friends of the Library. "A motion was made and passed that we would give $50,000 by 2004 to 2005, provided the rest of the project is funded."

Runyan said the group carries a substantial balance in its bank balance and she is confident it will meet this $50,000 commitment, "although we will have to raise funds in some way."

West Sacramento officials intend to provide the property for the county's new local library branch, and have already voted to buy acreage at 1271 West Capitol Ave. for this purpose.

The East Yolo Friends of the Library has about 200 members, said Runyan. The group traditionally supports programs and equipment needs at the West Sacramento library branch.

On to the next step?

SMUD board 'receptive' to Yolo —

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Officials of the Sacramento Municipal Utilities District (SMUD) are receptive to the idea of West Sacramento, Davis and other Yolo entities exploring the option of throwing the electric switch from PG&E to SMUD, reports West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon.

Mayor Cabaldon joined Davis Mayor Susie Boyd in addressing SMUD's board of directors on the issue last month.

"We went on February fourth," he said. "SMUD is in the middle of a strategic planning process, and this would be a big change for them. I'm confident from the comments on the board that there is board support to go forward."

The next step would be for all parties to study the costs and benefits of "annexing" the Yolo County territories into the Sacramento utilities district. West Sacramento and Davis officials believe they would get lower electricity rates by leaving Pacific Gas & Electric, but say there will also be some major expenses associated with the proposed switch.

Davis has spearheaded the issue. That city has long explored either joining SMUD or forming its own utility district.

A City of Davis study concluded that the plan would be more economically feasible to Davis if other Yolo areas – especially West Sacramento – switched to SMUD at the same time.

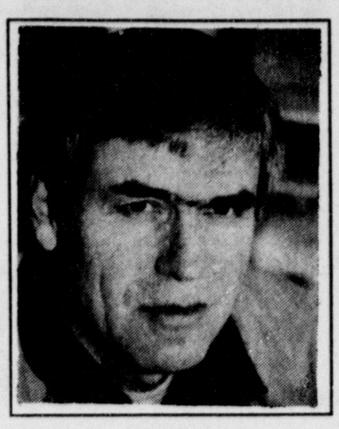
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The other evening, after yet another long day of slaving away at the News-Ledger, I shuffled through my front door, slowly made my way over to my favorite easy chair (which is situated so that it has the best television viewing in the house), grabbed the TV remote control from its sacred resting place, clicked on one of those headline cable news programs, collapsed in my chair, and waited anxiously to see if the world had blown up yet. And just as one of the reporters assured the viewing audience that North Korea was still months away from creating a bunch of nuclear bombs and that the United States probably wasn't going to invade Iraq for at least another two weeks or so, my wife suddenly tapped me on the shoulder.

"What?" I asked, my eyes still fixed on the television screen where Saddam Hussein now appeared to be giving an interview to Dan Rather.

"I think you need to have a little talk with one of your sons," said my wife.

"Which one?"

"Your youngest son."

"But I'm watching the news," I whined. "Do I have to do it right now?"

"Yes."

When my wife refers to one of our three sons as "your son", it is usually her way of telling me that one or more of them have done something she doesn't particularly approve of and that it's more or less my fault for having created an environment conducive to the offense having happened.

"So what did he do this time?" I asked with interest, guessing in my mind that he had probably brought home another poor progress report in math. "If he's having trouble in math again," I continued, "I think you have to keep in mind that I was one of the worst math students in the history of James Marshall High School and it probably doesn't really make a whole lot of sense for me to be lecturing him all the time about the need to get A's and B's in math when I have always been more or less brain dead in that area." Then, sensing that maybe there was a way I could pass the buck to my wife and therefore keep watching the nightly news in peace and quiet, I added, "Plus you're the one who always got such great grades in math. Maybe you could give him the lecture this time?"

"He's doing fine in math, Daryl," my wife assured me.

"So, then what's the problem?"

"Have you seen his neck lately?"

"His neck?" I asked, not having a clue what my wife was talking about.

"That's right, his neck."

"What's wrong with his neck? Did he hurt it or something?"

"I tell you what," said my wife, who has always been a believer in that old saying that a picture is worth a thousand words, "why don't I just go drag him away from his video games and have him pay you a little visit. Then you'll know what is wrong with his neck."

"Fine," I said, having already missed whatever lies Saddam Hussein had just told Dan Rather.

A few minutes later, with my youngest son and wife standing in front of me and blocking out the television photographs of the Pakistani house where they had just arrested one of Osama bin Laden's top lieutenants, I said, "So, your mother tells me you hurt your neck or something? How did you do that?"

"It's no big deal," said my son, his voice a little more contrite than usual.

"Go on," said my wife to my son, "show your father your neck."

Reluctantly, my youngest son pulled down his shirt collar a few inches and there for all to see was a bright red hickey.

"Your son has a love bite on his neck," said my wife with emphasis.

"It would definitely appear so," I agreed, making a quick mental note that this was probably not the appropriate time to be giving my son a high-five.

"Love bite?" said my son. "Just how old are you people anyway? I've never even heard of that term before."

"And do you want to know how your son said he got that thing?" my wife asked me with interest.

"I don't think so," I admitted.

"He told me that he got smashed with a hard-hit tennis ball during tennis practice this afternoon," explained my wife.

"Is that what you told your mother?" I asked my son, trying to keep a straight face.

"That's my story and I'm sticking to it," said my son with words to that effect.

"Well," said my wife, glancing over again at the obvious hickey on my son's neck, "if he got hit on the spot I'm looking at with a tennis ball, then that tennis ball must have stopped there for a good couple of minutes and sucked real hard on his neck!"

"Can I please go now?" my son pleaded with me.

"Not until you tell me how you're doing in math," I said, figuring I might as well kill two birds with one stone.

The rest of the story...

David Trussell

DRE Lic. #01010462

MARY ASKS:

"I now know how important credit scores are, and how they directly affect my home buying ability, but how are credit scores derived?"

DAVID TRUSSELL RESPONDS:

First, there are three bureaus that are used in almost every credit inquiry we make: Beacon (Equifax), Emperica (Trans Union) and Fair Isaac (Experian). Most industries use the acronym of FICO, which basically refers to all three bureaus' scores.

Your scores are derived through models. Your model is compared to persons with similar credit across the country.

There are, however, some basics the model looks at first:

1. Each bureau looks at all revolving (credit card), installment (cars, boats, furniture, etc.), mortgage debt & inquiries first. What they are looking for is potential risk. High balances on accounts, late payments, recent new accounts, inquiries, collections, etc.

2. Having many accounts open is not necessarily bad; but what is bad is having the balances of those accounts close to or at the credit limit.

3. Current activity on old accounts. Yes, paying off collections is very wise; however, they can disrupt the activity model on your credit. So pay off collections when you know you have them.

Truly explaining how credit scores are deived would require having to go to one of my workshops. But in the meantime, to keep your credit scores on the rise, here are some basics to live by:

- Keep revolving debt balance at 33% of the limit.
- Keep your inquiries at a minimum. Get your credit scores & remember them. When applying for credit, tell the salesperson your scores before they run your credit again. A good rep should be able to decipher your loan qualifications based on your scores.
- Simply put, pay your bills on time; keep balances low on credit cards, and don't buy something new every six months.

Kings Korner

The Kings won their fourth straight game and seventh in a row at friendly confines of the Arco Arena. Sacramento halted a five-game losing streak to Indiana with a strong 107-88 victory over the short handed Pacers. The Kings had last beaten the Pacers 116-113 on Jan. 9, 2000 at the Arco. With this victory, the Silver, Purple and Black also improved to a league-best 14-0 against the Eastern Conference teams at home.

For the third time in their past five games, the Kings needed overtime to decide a contest. The Kings won their third consecutive overtime game 108-105 last Friday against the Utah Jazz. The victory was their eighth in their past nine regular-season games over the Jazz. The Kings won for the second time in three meetings this season against Utah.

Keep in mind the Kings and Jazz could meet in the first round of the playoffs.

The Sacramento Kings (45-19) are closing in on the Western Conference leading Mavericks (48-15) with 18 games remaining in the regular season. The Kings are only 3 ½ games back of Dallas, the No. 1 seed for the playoffs. San Antonio (43-18) is currently No. 3 followed by Portland (40-22) and Minnesota (42-24). The Los Angeles Lakers (35-26) are quietly moving up the ladder to No. 6 while Utah (36-27) and Phoenix (33-29) are fighting off Houston (32-30) and Golden State (30-33) for the seventh and eighth spot.

The Kings will travel to Phoenix (6 p.m.- TNT) on Thursday night before their return home to host Vince Carter and the Raptors (7 p.m.- ch. 10) on Friday night. The game of the week will be on Sunday afternoon between the division leading Mavericks and Kings.

The big game will be televised on News 10 at 12:30 p.m. Don't forget the Kings and Lakers will tangle at the Arco onThursday, March 20th (7 p.m.-TNT).

NCAA College Basketball

The Sacramento State Men's basketball team pulled off the upset of the year with their first trip to the Big Sky Tournament. The Hornets (12-16) stunned third-seed Montana (13-17), the defending tournament champion, 88-75. That was the good news! The bad news is now Hornets move on to the semi-finals against top seed and host Weber State (24-5, 14-0 in conference play) on Tuesday night. The winner plays for the tournament championship at 6 p.m. Wednesday on ESPN2 and moves on to a spot in the NCAA Tournament. Congratulations to Coach Jenkins the Hornets basketball program for their history-making season.

Boxing News

Boxing returns to Feather Falls Casino on Friday night featuring Sacramento middleweight, Eric Regan (19-0, 12 KO's) against Rito Ruvalcaba (27-5, 24 KO's). The 12 round main event will be for the vacant International Boxing Association Continental title. Univision will carry the entire fight card starting at 6 p.m.

Another local fighter, Michael Simms, will be fighting this weekend in Chicago. Simms (12-0, 10 KO's) will face Felix Cora (10-0, 5 KO's) as part of a Showtime championship card. The 12 round main event will feature WBO junior-lightweight champion, Acelino Freitas (32-0) of Brazil against Juan Carlos Ramirez (29-4) of Mexico.

West Sacramento's No. 1 WBC lightweight contender, Juan Lazcano, turned down a $350,000 offer from promoter, Bob Arum, to fight champion, Floyd Mayweather Jr. in Las Vegas. Lazcano (31-2, 1 - 24 KO's) is holding out for more money to jump into the ring with the champion. Lazcano was offered six months ago $1 million to fight Mayweather on three weeks notice after the scheduled HBO fight was in danger of being canceled due to an injury to Mayweathers opponent. Lazcano chose to pass on the opportunity and wait for the right time to challenge Mayweather for his WBC title.

Lazcano, who is also, ranked No. 3 by WBA said he needed at least three months to prepare for Mayweather and a couple tune up fights for his title shot. Can you believe a fighter with a plan that passes up big bucks to do it right! Lazcano must be crazy like a fox!

See ya next week!

RC tennis: new conference

After spending the past eight seasons in the Golden Empire League, the River City High School tennis team began a new era in the Capital Valley Conference (C.V.C.) with a pair of wins last week. The Raiders downed Rio Linda 8 to 1 and Highlands 9 to 0 to improve their overall record to 5 wins and no losses in 2003.

Against Rio Linda, the host Raiders received excellent play from senior girls singles players Nikki Hansen (#1) and Irina Istomin (#2) who both won by the score of 6-1,6-0. Boys singles players Sen Saetern (#1) and Bhaves Patel (#2) had tougher tests but each prevailed in straight sets. Saetern overcame a 1-4 first set deficit for a 7-5, 6-1 win and Patel won 6-4,6-2.

R.C.'s girls doubles team cruised to easy victories against both Rio Linda and Highlands. The top duo of Nai Saelee and Mai Ker Yang and the #2 pair of Krystle Parkison and Leslie Yang each dropped only one game during the week's play. In the five doubles contests against Highlands, each being a 10-game pro set, the host Raiders won on a combined score of 50-1 over the inexperienced Scots.

The Raiders now find themselves in a three-way tie for first place in the C.V.C. after week number one. Vanden and Dixon also won a pair of contests last week and River City travels to play both the Vikings and the Rams this week before going to Antelope next Tuesday to take on a Cougar squad that split its first two league matches.

RCHS women win swim meet

From Patricia A. Andrews

On March 5th, the River City High School swim team participated in a non-league swim meet against San Juan High School.

The girls team was victorious but the boys team went down to defeat due to losing points for not having enough swimmers for all the events. Several team members swam outstanding races and should do very well in upcoming league competition.

River City has a very young swim team this year, consisting of three varsity swimmers and 12 junior varsity swimmers. However, while young, the team is very talented, many having spent several years in youth recreational league swimming.

Coach Bob Henager is expecting an exciting season for the team. The league opener will be at Foothill High School on March 13th.

Seeking Hispanic Student Journalists

Heineken USA and the National Association of Hispanic Journalists (NAHJ) are looking for Hispanic student journalists to be part of the Heineken: On Assignment program. Selected participants will serve as on-air radio reporters covering the Billboard Latin Music Conference and Awards in Miami Beach in May 2003.

Applicants selected for the program will be flown to Miami and trained by the news professionals from the NAHJ. The students will have full access as accredited members of the international press. Some will have the chance to file radio reports covering the conference, music showcases and award show for a local radio station.

To find out if you're eligible log on to www.nahj.org. All applicants must be 21 or older.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Bits & pieces

You may recall that several of your city council members voted, behind closed doors and in secret, to make a deal with the proposed Indian gaming casino last fall. Their rationale was that a federal court decision in favor of the casino was imminent, and the casino deal had to be rushed (with no time even for public comment or notice) to protect you.

The decision, in fact, took over four months to arrive – and then came down against the tribe behind the gaming proposal.

Whatever the motives of the individual council members (and no doubt some were honorable), their vote was a mistake. Let's just hope one or two lessons have been learned. One of those lessons ought to be that the public be allowed to participate in their own local government whenever possible.

Your editor recently drove across the newly-repainted Tower Bridge on an overcast day, and can report that hazy sunshine, if anything, makes that alleged gold color look even worse.

The News-Ledger last year told you about some California counties, including Los Angeles, which simplify a restaurant's food safety inspection with a letter grade such as "A" or "B," and then require that grade be posted in the window. It seemed like a good idea for Yolo County.

Such a system would let you know something about the cleanliness of the place you're about to eat, and would be an incentive to restaurateurs to keep their act clean.

The Sacramento Bee has given a similar idea a bit of a push for Sacramento.

Anybody here interested?

If so, write us. Write your county supervisor. Let somebody know.

Ignore that claim by the West Sacramento Press that it is "The Official Newspaper of Record for the City of West Sacramento." That claim has been wrong for several years.

You may likewise ignore their claim to have a circulation of 6,000 people, as many advertisers and prospective advertisers have been told. The true number is but a fraction of that.

Letters to the Editor

Westacre underpass loses a friend

Since my husband Leonard Triboli's retirement, he has taken on a project of cleaning up and beautifying the Westacre underpass. He has picked up litter, painted out graffiti, and planted poppies and bulbs on the slopes of the freeway, and along the fence-line. With my occasional assistance, the underpass has become much more pleasant for pedestrians, bicyclers and motorists.

He has known some setbacks. Well-meaning state and city workers have sprayed the plants he and I planted and weeded. The graffiti is back faster than his paint can dry, and there is someone who drinks beer and litters the slopes. At times those beer bottles get smashed against the pillars of the underpass and create a dangerous passage for everyone. On those occasions, Leonard has rushed to clean up the broken glass.

Last Wednesday, Len suffered the greatest setback of all. Seems like those who don't care have won. As he was picking up litter, along came a woman with a quart bottle of beer tucked up under her arm. She asked Len if she could pick flowers. He asked her to please refrain, that those flowers were for everyone to enjoy. Her only comment was that she enjoys flowers. On the way back from picking up litter, Leonard saw two neighbors who were standing along the walkway watching the inebriated woman digging up bulbs. One of the neighbors, who knew Leonard had planted the bulbs, had a bulb in his hand.

I regret to say a shouting match ensued between Leonard and the inebriated woman, with the result of more bulbs being ripped out. The discouragement has caused Leonard to throw up his hands. Not only has he received no assistance on the project, the people who use the underpass won't even defend what good works he has done. Perhaps, upon seeing the underpass return to its unkempt state, other citizens may wish to take up the cause.

Carrots instead of sticks

I wish to thank our illustrious city council for allowing me to address their august body twice this past Wednesday, even though I arrived to the chambers a few minutes late. I thanked them for breaking ground on our first city sponsored skate park, and pleaded my case for putting in two more. I then pointed out the apparent attempts by western district administrators to push for closure of our small, vital and historic branch of the post office, here in our neighborhood of Bryte. This, of course, despite promises to the contrary made not only at a public meeting a few years ago, but recently to a just retired ranking post office administrator and current council member.

Upon hearing the presentation on item #8 regarding federal mandates on storm water quality by Mr. Walker of Walker & Associates, which was fairly well detailed in some areas, and somewhat less in others, I had a few questions which the mayor kindly allowed me to ask. Everyone in the room, or at least the council and the citizens present, were somewhat aghast at the very short notice -- less than a week -- we were getting before the deadline to file our plan, along with guesstimated filing fees to the federal government. All of the solutions discussed between Mr. Walker, his associate and the city council eventually seemed to involve further intrusion into our private lives, usually in the form of official "Thou Shalt Not's" coupled with further fees, fines and restrictions. I queried as whether or not anyone had even considered a "carrot" approach as all I'd heard up to that point was all "stick". Basically council's response was to the effect that the federal government hadn't provided any funds for this project. Okay, fine. So just where does anyone think we're going to come up with monies to pay city coffers if our pets eliminate their waste on our lawns? (If you're wondering how that works, think ground water.) In other words, I believe I observed government thinking in full bloom, i,e: "Punish the bastards -- fine the hell out of them! That'll get their compliance." Just what is wrong with positive reinforcement anyway? Why not have some sort of small incentive program for not polluting (the carrot), instead of just threats of fees, fines, or worse (the stick) if we do?

By the way, our new city hall has a very imposing edifice and grand foyer which is proudly visible from the street. Too bad we (the great unwashed public) have to use the "tradesmen's entrance" in the rear in order to attend meetings of "our" city council.

J. BESHARIAN

In support of a casino

About the casino, all the small towns around us have one, but our city apparently has so much going for it with money and jobs that we don't need one. Right.

I have been to all of them and not one time have seen any trouble. Plus they provide money for clinics and other needed facilities that our city could also use.

And while I'm at it, if we have so much money, how about cleaning the mistletoe from our trees before we lose them all?

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Oscar Picks & Predictions

Like most of you, we here at The Lab have a yearly Oscar Pool. I'm the slob who runs our pool, and most people think it's because I'm the movie reviewer and that somehow I have an "in" to the Hollywood mindset. Not true. The reason I run the office Oscar Pool is because I never, ever get it right. I haven't predicted a Best Picture winner in my life. To prove this, I present my 2003 Oscar Picks & Predictions:

Best Picture

Prediction: "Chicago" — There's a huge buzz about this movie. God knows why.

Personal Pick: "Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers."

Best Director

Prediction: Rob Marshall — I think "Chicago" will probably sweep the Oscars this year.

Personal Pick: Peter Jackson for "Lord of the Rings." But then, he isn't nominated. Second Choice: Pedro Almodovar for "Talk to Her," cuz every movie he's made rocks. He's due.

Best Actor

Personal Pick: Michael Caine for "The Quiet American." Because I think it'd be funny for an actor who's spent five decades screaming his lines to win an Oscar for a movie with the word "quiet" in the title.

Best Actress

Prediction: Renee Zellweger. The whole "Chicago" thing.

Best Supporting Actor

Prediction: John C. Reilly. "Chicago." Again.

Personal Pick: Christopher Walken! My boy Chris gave "Catch Me If You Can" all the cowbell it needed, yo.

Best Supporting Actress

Prediction: Too close to call, but if I wad to guess (which I HAVE been), I'd say Julianne Moore for "The Hours."

Personal Pick: Kathy Bates for "About Schmidt." But only if she promises NEVER to do a nude scene again.

There you have it. Clip this little article, and on Oscar night have yourself a nice chuckle when you see how far off I am.

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Showbiz has been kind to Robert Downey Jr. Many in the industry have tried to help him with his personal problems, and others have given him work to see if that would help, because his is a tremendous talent. Hopefully he has conquered his demons, and it looks as if he will co-star with Halle Berry and Penelope Cruz in the dark thriller "Gothika." And it is DARK. About a criminal psychologist (Berry) who awakens to find herself a patient in her own mental institution with no memory whatsoever of a murder she has supposedly committed. Downey plays a fellow psychologist and Cruz another inmate.

Robert Downey Jr.

In New Orleans, where I grew up, we never referred to the Civil War. It was always the "war between the states." Overlooking St. Charles Avenue, the main beauty street, was a huge statue of General Robert E. Lee astride his horse, his sword at his side. BUT, the general and his horse didn't face the avenue. His back was to it. And that was because had he faced the avenue, he would have been facing south, and that would look like he was running away from the North, and we couldn't have that! ... All this was brought to mind because "Gods and Generals," a big picture about that war with Robert Duvall playing General Lee, is now big at the box office, and the book by Jeff Shaara from which it was adapted is now out in paperback (Ballantine Books).

Back in the '80s, Tracey Gold was well-known for her role in "Growing Pains." Then anorexia nervosa took over and her career went kaput. Now she has written a book, "Room to Grow: An Appetite for Life" (New Millennium Press), along with Julie McCarron, that should do wonders in helping anyone with the disease, and also those close to and trying to help someone who has it. Today Tracey is healthy, happy, married with two children and living in L.A.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Oscar winner Dame Judy Dench is set to co-star with Vin Diesel in "Chronicles of Riddick" for Universal. ... Aside to everyone who has asked. Finally! Finally it has been announced that "The Phantom of the Opera" (Lloyd Webber's musical) will be made into a movie. Shooting starts in the fall, but as yet no formal announcement as to who will play the Phantom. Hopefully it will be Michael Crawford, and the same mistake won't happen here that was made with "My Fair Lady": looking for a bigger box-office name. ... If you've noticed, I haven't mentioned the Michael Jackson revelations. And that's because I just don't know what to say! ... It gets worse and worse out this way. Every other person walking in the street talking on a cell phone, and that expanse from hipline to bustline is bared by two out of three young females. ... Aside to Lula G. of Harrison, Ohio. I would say Renee Zellweger is the hottest of the younger stars at the moment. Thanks to "Chicago." ... Word is there's to be a remake of the Bo Derek starrer, "10." Dudley Moore co-starred in the original. No word yet as to the headliners of this one. ... But Mark Damon, Heath Ledger and Robin Williams will parlay their powerful talents in "Brothers Grimm" for MGM. ... To get back to the "hot" Miss Zellweger, word is she's hesitant about another go at a "Bridget Jones" because she doesn't want to pack on the poundage again. And Bridget is definitely PLUMP. ... That was Tori Spelling in tight jeans and tight black top exiting a "SuperCuts" in Beverly Hills. ... Two of the top 10 are still looking for a good script. That's Gwyneth and Julia I'm talking about. ... And didya know that Robert Blake's given name was Michael Gubitosi?

Dublin Hotels Preserve Ireland's Past

St. Patrick was drawn there by a vision. Mere images of Ireland today will bring you blissful dreams of that evergreen ancient land. Here are some special places to stay in Dublin for your own visions of Eire.

The Schoolhouse Hotel: No one-roomed country schoolhouse here. The Schoolhouse Hotel has spent most of its days as St. Stephen's Parochial School, from 1861 to 1969. Its scholarly past has been well-preserved in old classrooms, now transformed into the award-winning Satchels Restaurant and the Inkwell Bar, and in guest rooms named after Irish writers. The current kitchen was once a domestic-science room for the school's girls, but forget the dregs you used to eat for school meals — it's French and modern Irish fare at Satchels. The guest rooms offer comfort that no dormitory could aspire to. For more information on this haven of old-world charm, go to www.schoolhousehotel.com.

Number 31 is what results when a Georgian house in Dublin marries a modern mews building. Formerly owned by controversial and celebrated Irish architect Sam Stephenson, the current proprietors have retained his design and welcome you into an oasis from the bustle of the surrounding city.

Rooms are contemporary with antique touches, and most are in the Georgian section. In the Coach House you'll find a sunken seating area surrounded by original art, a specially designed mirrored bar and a plant-filled conservatory where you can enjoy a traditional Irish breakfast with your hosts and fellow guests. For more information, go to www.number31.ie.

Clontarf Castle Hotel: For some real history, this is the place to stay. Clontarf was originally built in 1172 as part of Dublin's defenses. In 1649, the quartermaster general of Oliver Cromwell's army in Ireland, John Vernon, bought the castle, and it stayed in his family for almost 300 years. In 1835, alas, the original building was deemed unsafe and demolished. The present building was finished in 1837. Under one recent owner, it was actually one of Ireland's best cabaret venues. Finally, in 1998, it opened as a luxury hotel.

Stone towers and ivy-covered walls; crackling fires, tapestries, galleries, stone floor and mysterious doorways of the magnificent entrance hall; exposed beams, gargoyles and wrought iron throughout the castle — all deepen the Medieval atmosphere. For modern European cuisine in a Medieval setting, head to the Templars Bistro, with its stained-glass roof, chandeliers and pewter goblets. Cross into the Drawbridge for a casual drink or sandwich; for a more regal drink, head to The Knights Bar. For more information, go to www.clontarfcastle.ie.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered ten feet seven inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday. The farmers of West Sacramento District were not injured by the rain of yesterday to any extent. As a matter of fact, many of those growing garden crops like onions, lettuce and similar crops were overjoyed that the surface of ground was wet to some extent. Some hay that had been cut and left in the shock was not injured although a portion of it may require to be spread out for drying for a day or so.

Officials of the General Petroleum Company were visitors at Westgate yesterday examining conditions in the district and making provisions for enlargement of the plant. W. P. Durkee, jr., G. M. Marland, W. T. Shaw and E. E. Bame were the viewers of the plant in Westgate. They were accompanied by Rodney Dands, engineer of the corporation. With G. A. Henrye, they looked over the situation during the forenoon and left for Stockton and Fresno in the afternoon.

V. C. Apperson, one of the traveling salesmen of the General Petroleum Company, has been transferred from the Sacramento District to take charge of the plant at Woodland. E. Woodbury, formerly associated with the Associated Oil Company, has taken over the distribution of the products of the General Petroleum Corporation out of the Woodland headquarters.

Thomas McAnulty was a visitor in Westgate last Saturday after an absence of several weeks. He expects to return early next week to remain permanently.

Last Tuesday morning three freight cars of a San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line train were derailed and telescoped on the main line between the M Street bridge and Westgate. The wreck held up passenger trains for a short time until a sidetrack was cleared of a number of empty box cars that were stored there. The regular passenger traffic was not hampered only for a few hours owing to the availability of a sidetrack. Nobody was hurt and no material damage was done except to the box cars.

The little daughter of Bob Estes in Westgate, five years of age, is recovering from a serious spell of pneumonia with which she has been confined to her home for the past few days.

The West Sacramento Auto Camp reports a greatly increased number of tourists on the road north and south of this district and at the present time the camp is filled to overflowing with a fine class of people who are moving around on wheels to see the country. The month of April being extremely genial many from the north came south to see the country and many from the south came as far north to see what was going on in this section of the state.

Charlie Powers and wife left for New York last Tuesday with friends who had been camping in the West Sacramento Auto Camp. Powers was a deputy sheriff in the camp during the past two years and was a brother-in-law of J. Pereira. Lately his health failed considerably and he and his wife took advantage of the opportunity to make a trip to the East with parties who are leaving in an automobile.

Last Monday V. Montez, a Mexican, was arraigned in Judge Barry's court on a charge of malicious mischief which was sworn to by G. W. Smith, proprietor of the M Street Auto Camp. It seems that Montez tried to break into the cabin occupied by Smith, believing Smith to be absent at the time. Montez tried the door and nearly succeeded in breaking through. Fortunately for him the door held for behind it stood Smith with a sawed-off shotgun ready to shoot to kill. Failing to break the door Montez went to a side window and after breaking one light of glass pushed the window open. Smith went out the rear door and found Montez half way into the cabin but refused to shoot because he did not want to have murder on his head. Judge Barry fined Montez $50, which he had difficulty in raising but he eventually paid with the aid of friends.

Raising a great rumpus at the auto camp located at Second and Margaret Streets last Tuesday night Aristo Soto was placed under arrest by Constable Wilson when complaint was made to him by Curley Moore. Soto, after beating a woman resident of the camp, tried to steal an automobile and make his escape but was caught in the act and placed in the calaboose. Appearing before Judge Barry he pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $30, which he could not pay. He was taken to Woodland last Wednesday by Constable Wilson to serve thirty days in the County Jail.

G. M. Gains of Oakland was arrested on the State Highway last Saturday by Traffic Officer Jacobs while speeding at forty-fice miles an hour. He was allowed to go and yesterday pleaded guilty by mail. He will be fined by Judge Barry at the next session of court.

Complaint has been filed with the District Attorney of Yolo County against the Palace Dancing Academy on Second Street near the M Street bridge. Last Tuesday before Judge Barry an affidavit was sworn to that the academy was a nuisance, the affiants being Mr. and Mrs. I. K. Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper, neighbors in the vicinity of the academy. The operators of the dance hall claim that they are not responsible because two disturbances of April 12th and April 18th were caused by persons who were on the public street on Second Street at the time of the disturbance and had no connection whatprietors that their license to conduct the academy will be revoked if any more disturbances of that character are permitted in the vicinity.

Charles Fay has returned home after having been confined to the Southern Pacific Hospital in San Francisco.

After visiting here, Reuben Drew returned to his Los Angeles home. He was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Drew.

Mrs. R. C. George and daughter, Mary Pauline, are visiting relatives in Indian Valley, Plumas County.

Mrs. Della Knight of Oakland spent a few days here with her sister, Mrs. Celia Hart.

BUS SERVICE IS ENCOURAGED BY PEOPLE OF YOLO COUNTY

Starting last Saturday morning at six A. M., May 1st, Joe Misetich operated the first bus service between Westgate, Washington and Sacramento, and since that time he has been greatly encouraged by the patronage accorded him by the residents of this side of the river.

The first passenger to take advantage of this service was John Johnson, night watchman at West Sacramento headquarters. His home is in Washington on Fifth Street but during several years he has been forced to walk more than a mile to his work every evening and a mile back every morning. He declares now he is glad to take advantage of the bus service to get to his place of employment.

Every day has marked another increase in the revenue of the owners of the bus service.

The bus leaves Westgate at six A. M. every morning and operates every half hour from that point until ten P. M. at night.

Returning busses, of which there are two, leave the Union Station at Fifth and I Streets on the quarter hour. The return trip is made from the Union Station at Fifth and I Streets to Sixth Street, thence down L Street to Second, thence to the S. P. bridge.

The fare to Washington is 5c and to Westgate 11c.

Joe and Victoria Misetich are the owners of the service and were granted permission by the State Railroad Commission to operate the service. They are highly pleased with the patronage extended them thus far and advised the Independent that when the occasion demanded they would be glad to add more accommodations.

PROTEST WILL BE MADE AGAINST ABOLITION OF STATION

The movement on the part of the Southern Pacific Company to discontinue the station of Washington will be protested by residents of the town and district, according to Mrs. A. M. Cameron, president of the Washington Boosters' Club.

Word was published in several of the daily papers during the past week that application has been made by the railroad company to the Railroad Commission for the abolition of the station and several others in the state that are unremunerative at the present time.

Mrs. Cameron, speaking to the Independent, said:

"It must be conceded that the station known as Washington is not really a paying proposition because of the proximity of Washington to Sacramento.

"Freight of all kinds destined for Washington is loaded and unloaded at Sacramento.

"Passengers, except in rare cases, go to Sacramento to catch trains and since very few trains stop here to unload passengers the habit has been cultivated in the minds of our people that they must alight in Sacramento.

"Nevertheless, we feel that in the abolition of the name of Washington from railroad lists and railroad maps the community would be encountering a disadvantage that may take years to overcome.

"We feel that we cannot afford to allow this if we can remedy it and certainly we are going to take such steps as we can toward rectification.

"The Washington Boosters' Club will take up this question at its meeting next Tuesday evening and will consult with Supervisor Buckingham concerning the best means and methods of preventing the damage."

BANDY HOME AFTER MANY YEARS' ABSENCE

Claude Bandy, born and reared in Yolo county, in his time one of the greatest of baseball stars, brother of J. E. Bandy of Elkhorn district, president of the Yolo County Farm Bureau, has returned to his old love to make his home. Claude Bandy arrived a few days ago and is again stationed at the home place on the river. He has been for a quarter of a century or more in the bay district, but after all finds no place like the home hearthstone.

MONROE WOULD SUCCEED HIMSELF

we have refused to help anyone to uphold law or order. We are always ready to co-operate with any official, county or federal, or private individual to combat crime or lawlessness.

The political "game" has been more than kind to me. I have made countless friends through it. I have made the acquaintanceship of nearly all the people of this county. I have tried to do my best and tried to deserve it. Politics does not owe me anything, but I owe plenty to it, and I aim to serve you to the best of my ability.

You have shown your appreciation of my services in the past by returning me to this office with ever-increasing majorities. It has not only been gratifying that I have your confidence and good will, but also your encouragement and co-operation.

We need that more today than ever before, for law enforcement is becoming daily more difficult. If there is a breaking down in some of our laws then let's put teeth into enforcement. To repeal a law once put in the constitution is an admission that we cannot enforce that law.

When we make that admission then we weaken ourselves against every Bolshevik or other un-American organizations that are trying to undermine our government to the extent that they become bolder in their demands that their doctrine may replace ours.

We should each one constitute ourselves a law enforcement individual ready to render service and co-operate with legally constituted authority to bring about the obeyance of our laws.

We have much to do along this line in our county, but not nearly so much as in some other communities. There are only two places in our county that are a daily menace to the observance of our laws.

One is just across the Sacramento river from a large city where we are obliged to contend with the lawless and the outcasts of humanity from that city. It is like other small towns adjacent to a large metropolis where the scum, the dregs and the vicious drift over and are NOT OF OUR PEOPLE.

The other is a small river town where assemble hundreds of working men who are needed in the great industrial fields adjacent thereto. This little town is also unfortunate in having hundreds of human leeches that follow an army of good working men in order to fleece them of their honest money by plying their trades in bootlegging, gambling or some enticement that they may obtain their money regardless of law, order or decency.

Outside of these two places and its cause, we have with few exceptions a law-abiding county, and I welcome any support to help clean out the objectionable elements above referred to, and which good citizens and honest workmen are not responsible for and wish protection from.

In asking your endorsement for another term I do so with an honest desire to serve you, to impartially perform the duties allotted to me, to give personal attention to my office, endeaver to enforce all laws at all times, to give the people an efficient administration and in every way strive to merit the confidence and support given me in the past.

SUPERVISORS TO DISCUSS BRIDGE QUESTION FOR OR NEAR FREEPORT

Monday, May 24th, the supervisors of Sacramento and Yolo Counties will meet in joint session at the courthouse in Sacramento to discuss the question of building a bridge at Freeport or Clarksburg or at some point in the vicinity of those towns which will be convenient for the residents of the district.

Some time ago a request was made on the engineer of the War Department for permission to build a bridge in that location. It is understood now that a report from the War Department is ready and the meeting to be called on May 24th may settle the question of location.

Clarksburg, the center of a vast producing territory, has the accommodation of a ferry that is far from satisfactory and Clarksburg residents want a bridge across the river at that point.

During many yeaers residents of the Freeport section have been asking for a bridge but to this date no move has been made to help that locality.

It is considered likely that the War Department will grant permission for one bridge but may refuse permission for two bridges, hence the feeling is that a bridge must be located so as to accommodate the greatest number of taxpayers.

At the meeting in Sacramento on May 24th the question will be taken up and it seems likely that the Supervisors of Yolo County will give deference to the opinion of Supervisor Buckingham in that matter because it is in this district the bridge will be built.

The Clarksburg ferry, after being laid up for a few days, is again in operation to the great satisfaction of the growers of asparagus who are now at the height of their harvesting season.

COURTLAND WILL ENTERTAIN SATURDA YFOR BRIDGE

CALIFORNIA PETROLEUM CORPORATION IS WELL SATISFIED HERE

C. W. Houghtaling, resident engineer in the Northern district of California for the California Petroleum Corporation, has been spending several days in this section of Yolo County considering sights for the construction of a permanent plant.

At this writing the plant of the corporation is located in the Fraser and Doyle service station yards but is only of a temporary character and is being set up so that later on it can be moved to some point that will be selected as a permanent location.

A survey of several sites along the river has been made by Mr. Houghtaling during the past week. He was accompanied by the resident engineer in this locality, Mr. V. C. Douglas.

To the Independent yesterday they were unable to specify the exact location of the new plant but advised that it would not be farther south than Westgate or its vicinity.

Clarence Herndon, who is in charge of distribution for the California Corporation in this locality, is well pleased with the patronage extended this new enterprise in this section of the state.

Two new Mack trucks are expected here next Saturday for the delivery of the products of the corporation. Later on smaller delivery wagons will be used from the plant when the permanent location is selected.

WEST SACRAMENTO IMPROVEMENT ASSN. WILL MEET TONIGHT

A question of great importance to be considered at the meeting of the West Sacramento Improvement Ass'n tonight will be the Memorial Bridge which is being promoted at the present time to connect Sacramento and Yolo Counties at some point near Y Street or U Street in Sacramento.

E. C. Parsons, who has been interesting h imself in this laudable project for several months past, has been invited by the club to speak on the question at the meeting tonight.

Parsons is thoroughly informed on the subject and interests himself in it mostly on patriotic lines. He believes that a Memorial Bridge of this character would be a valuable addition to the entrances to Sacramento and in addition would be a great relief to congestion to automobile travel across the two bridges that are now in use.

All members of the Improvement Association have been notified by postal to be present at the meeting tonight and no doubt a large gathering will be there to hear what Mr. Parsons has to say.

VIRDEN PLANTS TAKEN OVER BY BRITISH CONCERN

San Francisco, May 6.—(A. P.)—The Chronicle said last Tuesday that the British concern, Balfour, Guthrie and company, have invaded the California fruit field by obtaining an option on the five largest plants of the Virden Canning company for $2,500,000. The canneries are located at Marysville, Elmhurst, Fruitvale and Emeryville. The same source also says:

"It was learned that the Oroville cannery, owned by the Virden interests and known as the Sunical plant, has been sold to the Hearst estate, which intends to pack its own fruit instead of selling it to the Virden plant as in the past.

"Negotiations are being conducted with a local wholesale butcher for the sale of the Virden Meat company packing plant in south San Francisco with the price said to be between $700,000 and $1,000,000. With these interests disposed of there would remain but two canneries, at Oroville and Lindsay."

President Charles L. Virden made the statement that "the contract with the growers under the 1926 season will be cared for by Balfour and company."

The local manager of Balfour, Guthrie and company said:

"This deal is merely a financing proposition."

Francis E. Laney, head of the Sutter county co-operative growers is to assume charge of the five plants acquired by the British company.

Berry: "Why do rabbits have shiny noses?"

Dimples: "I'll bite; why?"

Berry: "Because their powder puffs are on the other end."

"Why don't they have insane asylums in Arabia?"

"Because there are nomad people there, you sap."

BIDS FOR SCHOOL BUILDING WILL BE OPENED ON MAY 17TH

The trustees of the Washington School District will open bids on May 17th in the Auditorium of the Public School building in Washington for the construction of the new school building provided in the bond issue of $20,000 which was voted on favorably some time ago by the people.

Advertising for the bids is now being run in a Woodland paper.

The building for which plans were completed about two weeks ago will consist of two rooms to be used as class rooms. In addition, there will be two washrooms for the children and two lavatories, as well as a teacher's rest room, all under the same roof.

The two class rooms are designed so that later on when an addition will be needed the separating partition can be removed without injuring the building and that portion will then be used as an auditorium for the school.

Mrs. Manchester advised the Independent yesterday that the building will be heated by some method besides stoves in the class room, possibly a hot water radiating system.

She also advised the Independent that it is the intention of the trustees to have the building ready for the opening of the school session following the midsummer vacation.
